

HANOVER

THE PLACE TO BE

FRIDAY, MAY 28, 2010

A15

Baby Boom

A new store in downtown Hanover was officially opened two weeks ago with an official ribbon-cutting and some special guests. Proprietor Lorraine Baldwin (centre) was joined by Hanover Councillor Selwyn Hicks, along with some local children and the Farties ladies – Sandra Van Cromvoirt, right, and her granddaughter Skye, who gave a reading of “Meet the Farties” that day. The Baby Boom Trading Post is a children’s consignment store – the first affiliate store of the original in Wingham. The store consigns children’s and babies’ items, maternity wear, toys, shoes and more. The store is located on 10th Street beside Johnny K’s.